JEREMIAH TRIED AND ACQUITTED

Sanday School Lesson for August 6, 1911 Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 26.

MEMORY VERSES—13-14.

GOLDEN TEXT—"The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear?"—Pea. 27:1.

TIME—Josiah was slain in battle B. C. 606, in the list year of his reign.
Jeholakim his son began to reign the same year and reigned eleven years, B. C. 608 to 537.

PLACE—Jerusalem and Judah.

408 to 597.

PLACE—Jerusalem and Judah.

JEREMIAff began to prophesy B. C.

428. In the 13th year of Josiah, soon after

Josiah began his first reforms, and he prophesied 40 years, to B. C. 588, the year that the Temple was destroyed and Jeru salem burned to the ground.

We turn now from the career and character of a good boy who became a good king, to a bad young man who became a bad king; while the same prophet who aided the first for 18 years tried now to stem the tide of evil favored by the other during the 11 years of his reign.

Thirteen years of labors to make his people serve and obey God have passed since Josiah entered upon his great reform. The Pharaoh Necho of Egypt marched along the seacoast of Palestine northward to meet the armies of Assyria. Foolishly and needlessly espousing the Assyrian cause, Josiah met him at Megiddo on the plain of Eedraelon, was defeated and killed. Professor Kent calls this disaster unquestionably the most tragic event in Hebrew history. The reform party at once placed upon the throne Josiah's third son, Jehoshaz, 23 years old, evidently because he resembled his father, but as soon as the victorious Necho returned from the Euphrates he reversed the arrangement, carried Jeboahas in chains to Egypt after a reign of only three months, and left on the throne his elder brother, Eliakim, 25 years old, rightly judging him to be of a character more suited to his purpose. In token of vassalage Eliakim changed his name (in form, but not in significance) to Jehotakim, "Jebovah raiseth up." He proved to be a tyrant, of whom Jeremiah speaks always in condemnation. His magnificent palace, built by forced labor, his murder of the prophet Uriah and his persecution of Jeremiah show his

Jeremiah was a native of Anathoth, a little villag three and one-half miles northwest from Jerusalem. His father was Hilkish, a priest (not the bigh priest who was Josiah's aid). He was of a retiring, exquisitely sensitive nature, and yet had a spiritual courage gang spirit, the power of a popular leader and a band of associates.

Every child, like the young king of this lesson, is born into a world where many good influences and many bad ones are awaiting his choice of the life he will lead. To every child comes the message from God urging him to do right at any coat, showing him that there is only one way to a life worth living.

Doubtless the normal way of children in devotedly Christian families to come so gradually into the Christian life, to make their decisions In small things, unconscious that these are really life-choices. But even these need the decision day influences.
